Animal Sounds & Rabbit Day

Hubby & I recently spent a week with our grands. They range in age from 0-3 so the activities were varied. We were reading a book and the older ones were attempting to teach the younger ones about animal sounds when the 3-year-old asked, “what does the rabbit say?” Papa didn’t hesitate at all, but replied, “Eh, what’s up, doc?”

The perplexed look on Cody’s face was priceless. Was it possible? Did this young one not know? Had he never heard of the famous Bugs Bunny? Nope, he had not. Time for Mama & Papa to educate them. Time for cartoons to do their job—teach.

Side Note: the creator of Bugs Bunny was from Texas where “what’s up, doc?” was a common expression & was akin to saying, “what’s up, dude?”

When I taught elementary music, I often used cartoons to teach musical concepts. Even then I was amazed at the number of kids who had never seen or heard the Bugs Bunny version of The Barber of Seville. No way were my grands going to be starved of that part of their education.

Seeing the smiles & hearing the giggles of their first introduction into the world of Bugs was awesome. Yes, I have pictures.

Luke 7:23 ~ "Blessed are those who are not offended by me."

"Eh, what's up, Doc?"

Not living close to them, I was so blessed to catch this 'first'.

After being offered several choices, they refused all cups but the ones we sent them originally. Go Tigers!

Before you fuss, remember, their great-grandfather is in the Clemson Football Hall of Fame. 🐾
